Floyd River Water Quality Partnership RCPP 2570

Conservation practices to reduce nutrient loss and improve water quality

What is RCPP?

The Regional Conservation Partnership Program (RCPP) promotes coordination of NRCS conservation activities with partners that offer value-added contributions to expand our collective ability to address on-farm, watershed, and regional natural resource concerns. Through RCPP, NRCS seeks to co-invest with partners to implement projects that demonstrate innovative solutions to conservation challenges and provide measurable improvements and outcomes tied to the resource concerns they seek to address.

Partnership

The Floyd River Project would provide additional funding to implement conservation in underserved areas and support coordinated on-farm research and demonstration partnerships with input suppliers, farmers, and the livestock industry. The combination of technical and financial assistance from RCPP will help reduce potential losses of soil and nutrients to waterbodies.

Eligible Practices

The project establishes an approach for private sector conservation planning support for approved NRCS conservation practices such as:

- Cover Crop
- Residue and Tillage Management, No-Till
- Denitrifying Bioreactor
- Saturated Buffer
- Grade Stabilization
- Wetland Restoration
- Constructed Wetland
